MICROC

O S M

Microcosm is defined in Webster's Dictionary as "the little world." However, we at Simmons College, as microcosms within society, can expand upon the term. Four years at Simmons allow us to grow and become who we are as individuals. We are all unique and our friends, training, studying, and experiences have shaped us to be who we are today. We all have a different place in this world, whether it be in the workplace or in the home, and it is our life-long challenge to find where we fit into the larger picture of life.

We are similar to puzzle pieces because we all have different appearances and personalities, but it is this individualism that completes the puzzle. Our talents can be put to use for the benefit of others, and we can in turn learn from their experiences. Essentially, the microcosm reflects the macrocosm.

We all have something to contribute to society from our own "little world." We must open our doors and experience the unknown. Dare to go beyond the limits...challenge...discover.

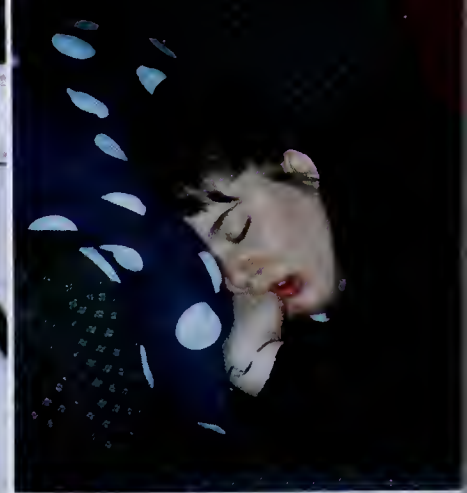

In a world undergoing change, we must take a walk through an unopened door and grasp everything within reach. Then we must apply our own talents, knowledge, and skills to situations and give back to society. The future depends on us.

"It is my will to found and endow an institution to be called Simmons Female College, for the purpose of teaching those branches of art, science, and industry best calculated to enable the scholars to acquire an independent livelihood."

Simmons has remained an environment for women to make an impact on a world often dominated by men in the past. We are taught to have confidence, control, and desire to compete and pursue our dreams and goals.

Four years of interaction and fun with our friends has helped shape our worlds and identities. We learn how to just be ourselves.

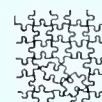

MICROCOSM '92

MICROCOSM '92 is dedicated to all the individuals in this world whose unselfish behavior has brought about a change in society. We challenge every woman who leaves Simmons College to use her knowledge and skills to influence, guide and educate others yearning for opportunities to make a difference. YOU are like a puzzle piece. You have developed your unique identity, now use it and make your contribution to society, the Macrocosm.

CURRENT EVE

The world is a macrocosm. With every minute by minute development comes a challenge and it is our duty as the future of this earth, to make a difference. Change does not have to be measured, for even the slightest effort is a worthy one.

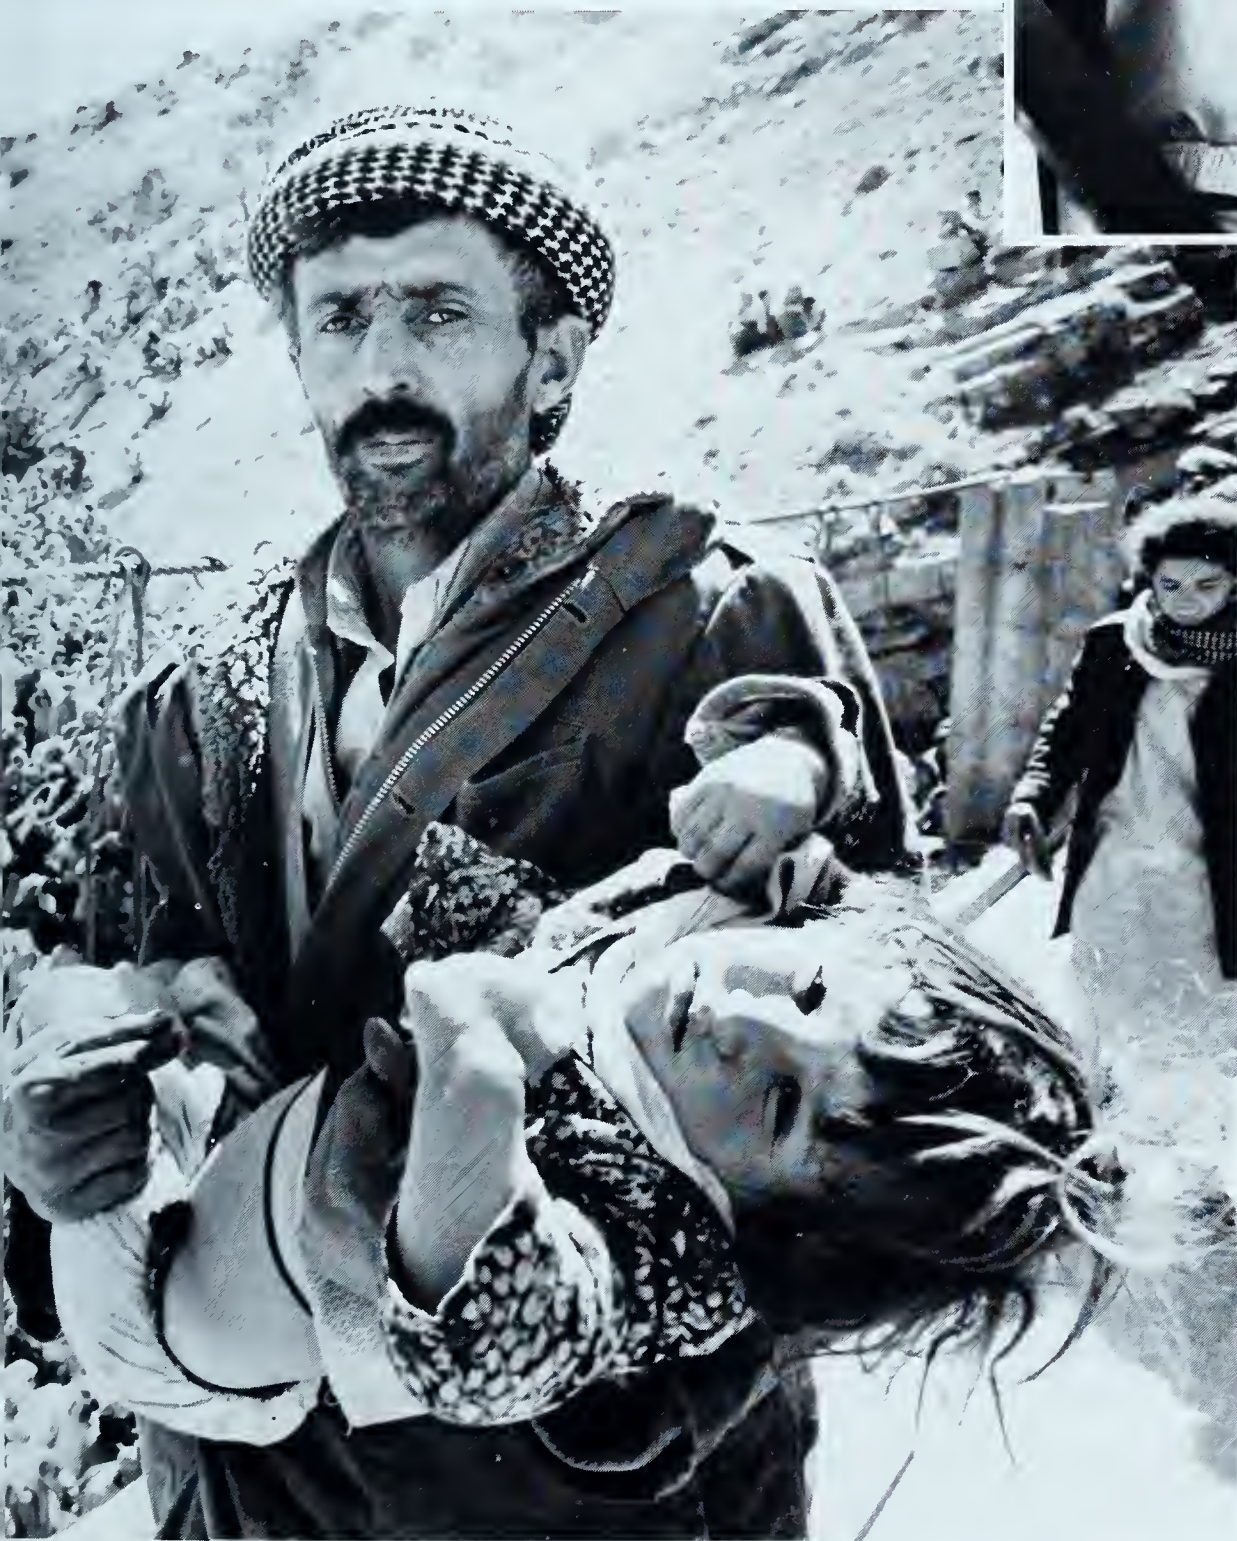

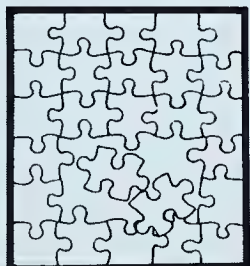

In the past years, we have seen technological developments of computers, machines, and aeronautical equipment, a concern for the environment, the unification of Germany, hostages released, and a new Soviet commonwealth in the make.

At times we seem surrounded by chaos and we wonder what our status will be as countries continue to dispute borders, diseases go uncured, humans die of hunger and AIDS, and the environment remains in danger. However, we cannot consider these challenges as negative signs nor as obstacles.

By acknowledging the problems and bringing them down to the level we as individuals and groups of individuals can deal with, we will be successful in making an impact on the world. The world has come a long way and must continue to do so through our contributions.

CITY LI

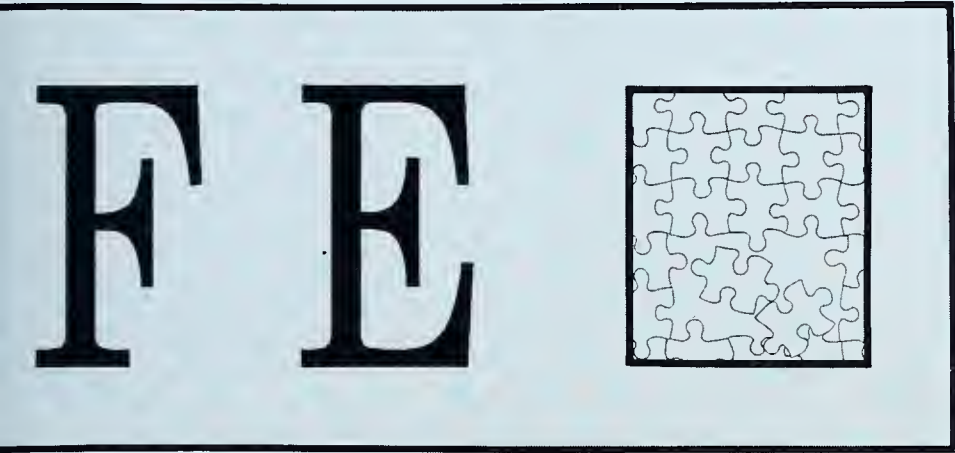

Boston is a city rich in heritage and diversity. Throughout history, Boston has proven to be a stepping stone for the climb toward independence. Faneuil Hall, the Freedom trail, museums, and statues remind us of the efforts our forefathers made for the benefit of society. As microcosms, they made their mark on the world.

Boston is also a world within itself, with the Red Sox, Kenmore Square, the Museum of Fine Arts, and night clubs just down the road. When we walk down the streets of Boston or take the "T" we open the doors to an exciting environment packed with restaurants, theaters, fraternities, music, sports, and places to shop!

Besides having fun, many of us have worked or interned in Boston. There's so much we can grasp -- our learning does not stop at Simmons. We spend time in companies and catch a glimpse of what our life may be like after college. We contribute our skills, and in turn, learn more from the opportunity.

Boston is our world. As individuals, we must absorb all we can from it and apply the knowledge to our own lives.

Dawn Gagne, a senior at Simmons, interns at the Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau. She works in the Public Relations Department as an Assistant to the Public Relations Director and Coordinator. This Bureau plans major city-wide functions, such as a press trip scheduled for the press from all over the country, as well as the United Kingdom and Canada.

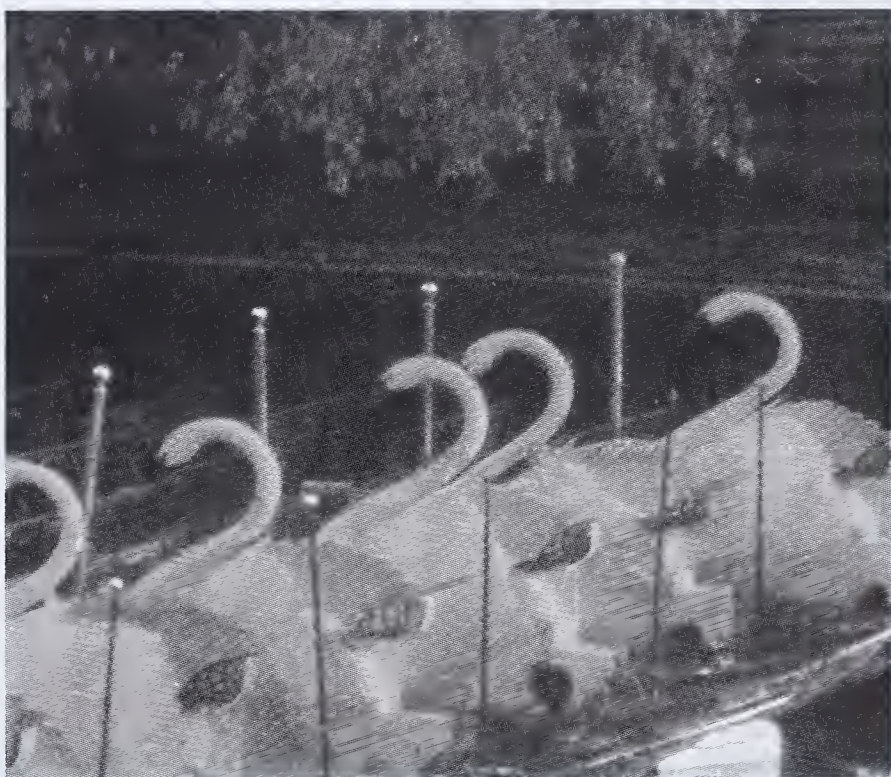

Rather than interning only during her second semester as most students chose to do, Dawn works 8 hours a week and also takes classes. She plans to continue interning during the second semester.

Interestingly, Dawn got this job almost by accident. The Four Seasons was one of the places that she applied to, but because her application was a bit late, they did not have a position for her. However, her resume was noted, and they regretted not being able to take another intern. One afternoon, the manager at Four Seasons was having lunch with the Public Relations Director and Coordinator of the Greater Boston Convention and Visitors Bureau. She mentioned Dawn as an excellent candidate for an intern position, and the next day, Dawn received a call from the Bureau; they were looking to set up an interview. Dawn enjoys working much more than school, mostly because one can get into the inner workings of a company and begin to apply what was learned in classes.

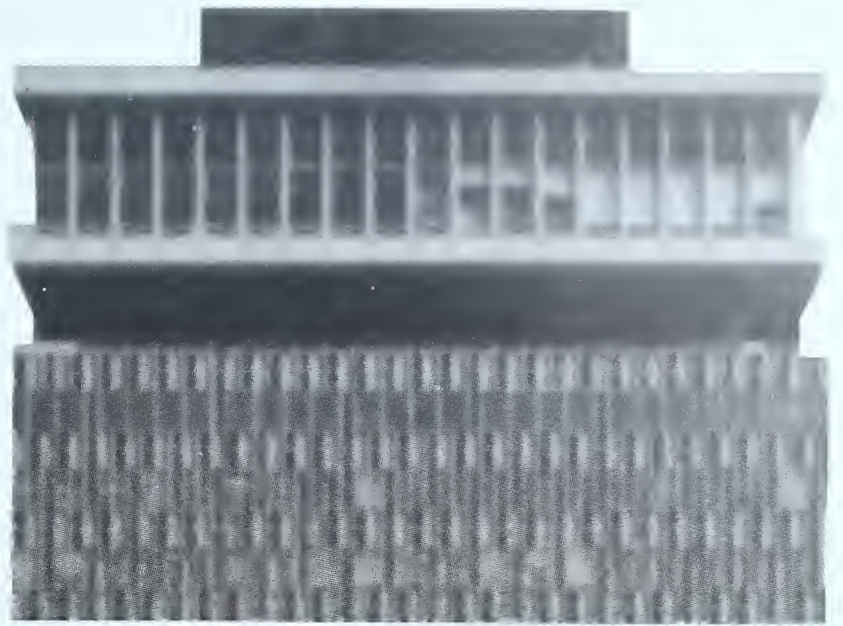

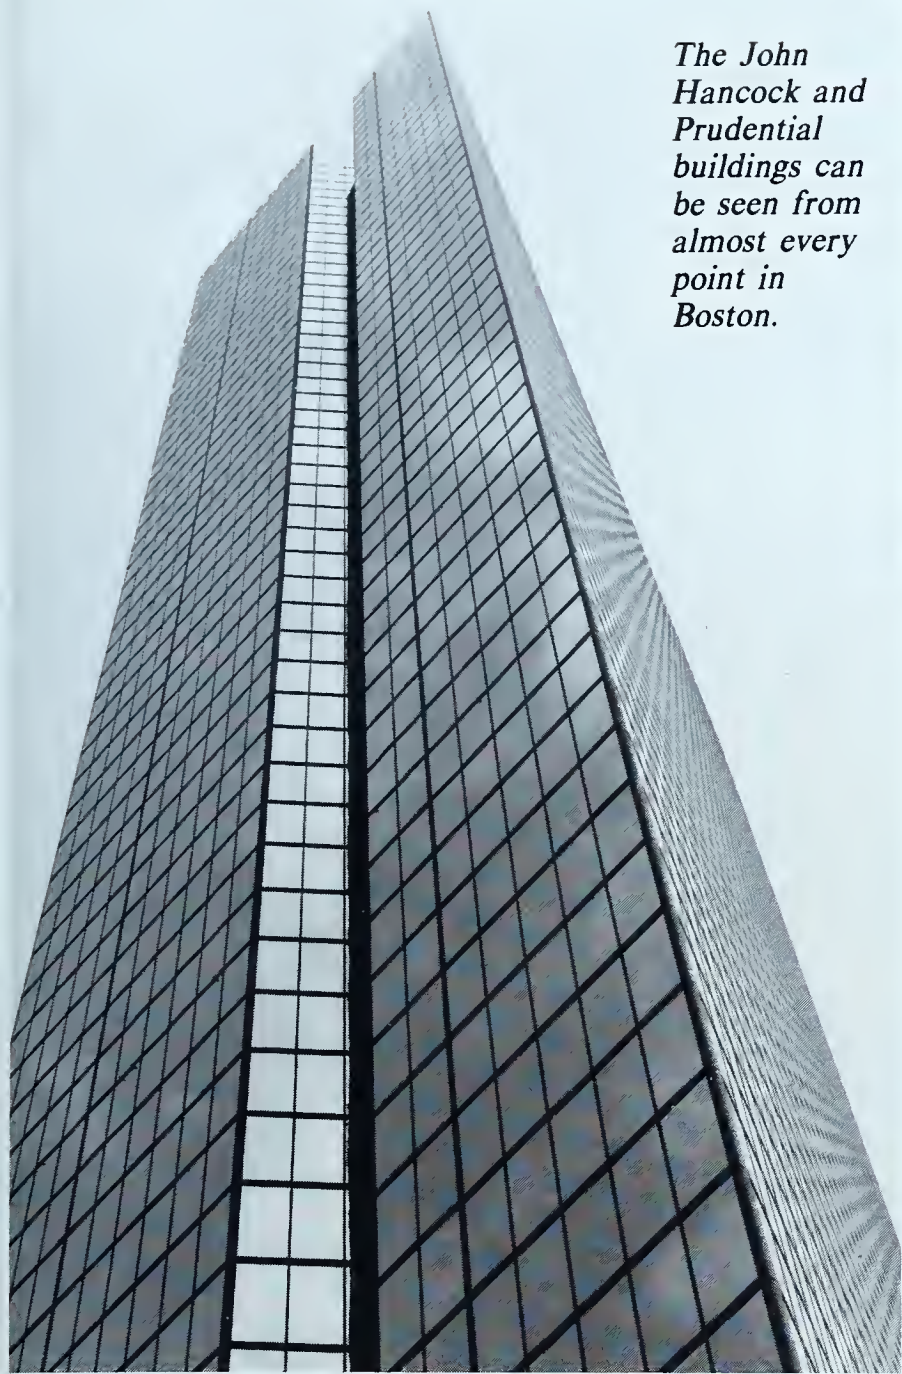

Boston, a world in itself, has a variety of attractions for all to enjoy. Some of the more noted are the Museum of Fine Arts and the Children's Museum, which are shown here.

Faculty Groups Ask Holmes to Resign

by Jill Harmacinski
Editorial Staff

When William J. Holmes first arrived in Boston in 1970 to assume the position as President at Simmons he was only 43 years old, an age that was considered young for a college president.

Holmes didn't agree.

"I see nothing magic about my age. I do feel that I'm just the right age for being a college president," said Holmes in an article in the Simmons Janus in 1970.

Now after 21 years at Simmons, a majority of the faculty at Simmons think Holmes is at a perfect age for retirement.

Again, Holmes didn't agree.

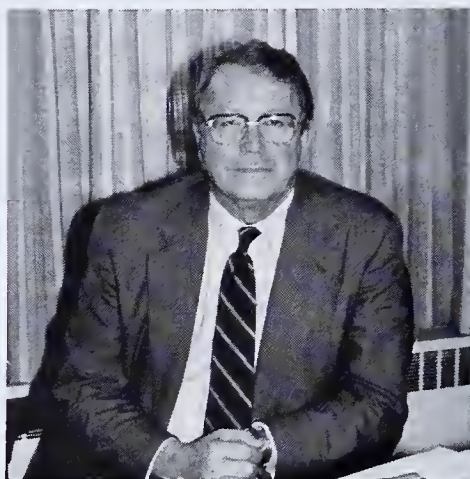

Last spring President William J. Holmes was asked to resign as a result of a faculty vote, according to a memo to the Faculty Council and the Council of Chairs dated April 30, 1990.

"We tried to convey some of the major arguments advanced by the faculty for his retirement, including the need for fresh vision and leadership, the problematic symbolism of a male president in an institution which is reaffirming its mission to educate women for leadership, and the good will that will continue if President Holmes takes this step in the greater interest of the college," reads the memo which was authorized by faculty members Pam Bromberg, convener of the Council of Chairs, and Bob Goldman, president of Faculty Council, who met with President Holmes to discuss his possible resignation.

"The planning process has brought us to the verge of difficult decisions; we would like the next president to be invested in those decisions and held accountable for them," the memo states.

"In keeping with instructions from Faculty Council and the Council of Chairs, we tried to be gentle and non-personal in our statements and to reassure him that we do not blame our current enrollment crisis on him."

Recently Bromberg said an "issue of leadership at the college" forced the two groups to make the request and then forward it to members of the corporation. At a meeting on May 8 with some of the Corporation members, the two faculty groups presented their findings of the faculty survey on President Holmes' future at Simmons.

"The college is at a critical stage when big decisions need to be made," Bromberg said last week. Bromberg and Goldman both agree that it is definitely time for a new president. According to the two professors many Alumnae would be much happier supporting a female president.

"It sends a mixed message," Goldman said. "To have a male president seems a little inconsistent" with Simmons' goal and vision. Bromberg also said that many students share that same opinion.

"Getting a new leader won't solve all of the College's problems, but we think it is an important start [for] new ideas, new direction," Goldman said.

"We need ideas at all levels. The wisdom in higher education is that college presidents usually run out of ideas in ten years," Bromberg said. Holmes, again, has been here for 21.

However President Holmes did not concur with the faculty's 69 to 23 vote in favor of his retirement. At the time of this meeting with Bromberg and Goldman last spring Holmes identified 4 main points in his defense.

According to the memo Holmes said that he was planning to retire in the near future and was surprised that he had not heard of those plans via the "Simmons grapevine." Holmes also "believes the next few years will be very difficult for the college" and he does not want to hand the leadership over to someone new at this time. Holmes also "expressed concern about maintaining an alliance between the undergraduate program in a crisis. Lastly, according to the memo, Holmes said that the Corporation supports him in his endeavors.

"The Chair of the Council of Chairs and the Chair of the Faculty Council met with me last spring about my resignation...early retirement...whatever," President Holmes said recently. "At the time I said to them I had a couple of missions that I really wanted to get done," said Holmes mentioning the funding for the Sports Center and the challenge of trying to get the college through the worst of the population decline. He also stated that he has no present plans to announce his retirement or resignation.

Diversity and Retention Among SGA Goals for the 1991-92 Year

By Lauren Obermueller
Contributing Writer

The Student Government Association (SGA) at Simmons has planned a series of improvements to be made over the next few years, each revolving around the set goals of diversity and retention.

These goals were chosen during a brainstorm session at the SGA officers' annual retreat on October 6. According to SGA president Caitlin Carroll, each potential accomplishment brought up at the session seemed to fall naturally into one of those categories.

Under the diversity goal, SGA hopes to improve the college by forming a multi-cultural course that each Simmons student would be required to take before graduating.

A committee will be in charge of researching the possible content and scheduling of the multi-cultural course. Nazli Gurer, SGA vice-president, said that rather than the mandatory four semester language requirement, students might be more interested in learning about different cultures.

"The core curriculum here is too narrow," Gurer said. "It doesn't let you take the classes you want."

SGA is also looking to develop a faculty group that will support a collective group on campus. The group will consist of Simmons community members that are not considered "mainstream," such as commuters, Carroll said.

Monthly cultural programs may also be experienced on the Simmons campus this year. Carroll describes these as programs that will "advance awareness and acceptance of diversity."

Their first major retention plan is to renovate the gym in the Main Campus Building into a student activities center. Gurer said that a floor plan for the renovation may include office space for student organizations as well as a student union area.

"It's not going to occur this year, but we'd like to set it in motion," Carroll said. "We think this will add to the student life at Simmons."

SGA plans to raise the money for the project through grants or fundraisers that Simmons students can participate in.

Two women's conferences are also in the works under the retention plan. The first potential conference will be held for one day, just for Simmons students. It will address the different issues connected with women's education and what it means to graduate a Simmons women, Carroll said.

The second conference will be for colleges from around the country, hosted by Simmons, and will also discuss the benefits of women's education from a myriad of viewpoints.

"There's a lot to be said for Simmons, as far as being an attractive and forward-setting college," Carroll said, and she plans for this message to get across to other schools at the conference.

Coed colleges that were once women's colleges will also be invited to the conference, Carroll said. Together, the students of each college will address the necessity of women's colleges in order to provide themselves with more confidence when they argue for women's education.

The SGA retreat was held on Thompson's Island in Boston Harbor. The purpose was to allow the officers, any of whom are new to SGA and come from a variety of different backgrounds, to enhance their working relationships through a bonding experience.

"The retreat gave [the SGA officers] a better sense of how we can work together," Carroll said. It really solidified us as a group and as a team."

SGA officers arrived in the morning to participate in activities that developed both trust and a strong working relationship between the students. It was organized solely by SGA members.

"The whole SGA, as a team, had to accomplish each task that was given to us," said Erica Borowski, sophomore class president. "We had to group together, make a plan, think of how we'd accomplish it and then actually try to do it. It was good, because we all had to work together."

On Monday, October 28, students on the residence campus had their first encounter with the new combination locks in the central mailroom.

Although the locks were scheduled to be installed during the first month of classes, the changeover was delayed because they were not delivered on time.

The immediate reaction of the student body to the change was not favorable. It ranged from extreme frustration to a "wait-and-see" attitude.

Diane Abramson, a resident in Simmons Hall, called the new locks, "very inconvenient, frustrating... I don't Nicole Consentino, program assistant to the Graduate Program in Liberal Studies, also got word that recyclable paper was being thrown away.

$1 Million 'Overexpenditure' of Financial Aid Funds Examined

By Jill Harmacinski
Editorial Staff

It appears that an estimated $1.6 to 2 million was spent on financial aid for 1991-92, according to President William Holmes. Originally Holmes had said that about $500,000 had been spent, but an "overexpenditure" has occurred. Holmes said he only learned of this within a week.

Slattery said Residence Facilities will do their best to accommodate students who have physical difficulties with either the combinations or the height of their mailbox. A few students have been given boxes that are on a lower level, and some boxes will be left with key locks for those who do not have the dexterity to use a lock.

But according to Earthworm employee Jeff Coyen, the last time anything was picked up at Simmons was last spring. "We collected every month for a year up until April 8, 1991," Coyen said. Two weeks will be allowed for professors who wish to appeal the tenure decision, Holmes said. However, if their appeals are not successful, the professors must leave Simmons by the end of the 1992-93 academic year.

Concern over the integrity of the tenure system has arisen. Sources that do not wish to be quoted have said an academic dean told at least one tenure candidate that there could have been one more person tenured. Also, one candidate was reportedly given extra time after the due date to prepare his or her dossier. □

Activities at Simmons allow us to come together within our own world to develop, organize, and delegate responsibilities to accomplish a certain goal. This process is similar to governments and national organizations within the macrocosm who also plan events.

On our microcosmic level, the Activities Planning Board (APB) and various committees are major factors in creating those fun weekends we all remember with our friends, families, and loved ones. From rope ladder climbing to brunch at President Holmes' house; from Parents Weekend, to the Valentine's Ball, we will forever remember these times outside of the academic arena. Simmons activities have allowed not only members within our own community to interact, but they also have brought others to enter into our worlds.

ES

Fall Fest '91

Fall Fest '91, held on September 14-17, was a blast! With "Mike Healey and the Starmakers" in Quadside on Thursday and the "Video Sock Hop" on Friday, the weekend started on the right foot. The carnival on the Quad on Saturday perfectly completed the weekend, despite the rainy weather, with rope ladder climbing, air mattress jumping, and balloon-making clowns. Contests and cotton candy let everyone just be "kids" again!

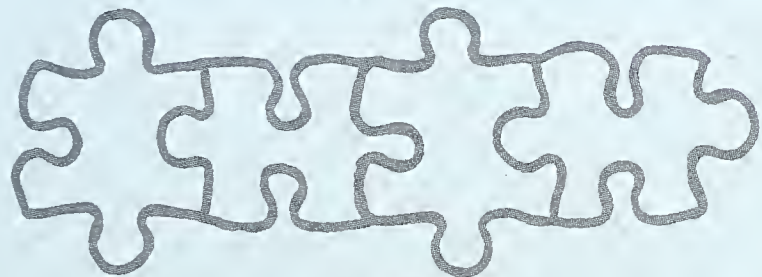

Don't Mess Up!

Hey, I think I hit a bird!

I can't believe we're doing this for college kids!

I think I can, I think I can...

Parents Weekend '91

From November 1-3, parents and guardians could spend time with their daughters touring Boston, eating at restaurants, and getting to know Simmons a little better. The weekend began with Friday afternoon tea, a concert by the Simmons Chorale and a welcome reception. President Holmes gave the state of the college address on Saturday morning and faculty forums followed. Simmons Graduate and Arts & Entertainment Critic for WBZ-TV Joyce Kulhawik was invited by the Simmons Club of Boston to speak about her past jobs and what advice she could offer students and parents about careers. "Love what you do!" said Kulhawik. Parents and daughters could then spend a night on historic Boston Harbor dancing on the Spirit of Boston. The weekend came to a close on Sunday with brunch at President Holmes' house.

Everyone say "Cheese!"

Mother Daughter Weekend '91

You can tell by the smiles on the faces of these seniors and their mothers that everyone had a great time on Mother Daughter Weekend. They started off with a champagne reception in the Trustman Gallery on Friday, December 6. Mothers and daughters could talk with faculty and staff and view the student art show. It was then time for Comedy Night and laughs in Alumnae Hall.

On Saturday, a luncheon at the Colonnade Hotel and a trip to see either "Shear Madness" or "The Nutcracker" had each of the mothers very glad they came. Some commuter students also treated their mothers to eating out.

The weekend ended at the President Holmes' house on Sunday.

Father Daughter Weekend '92

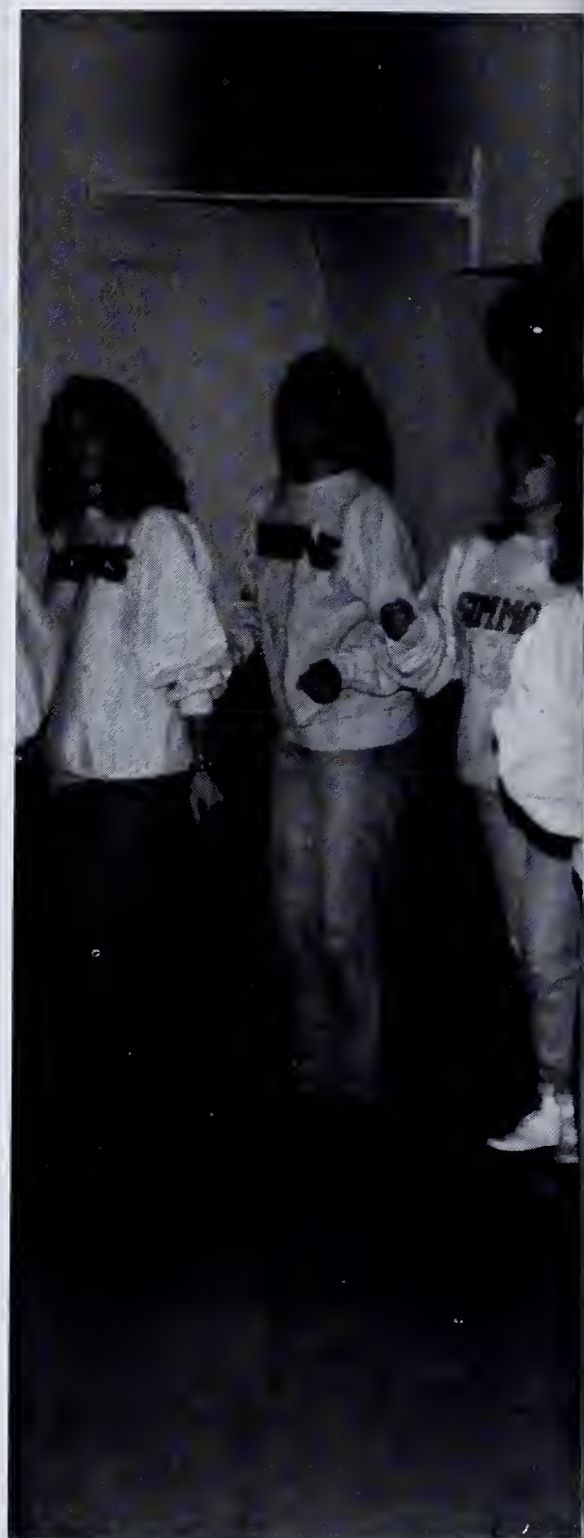

Simmons seniors and sophomores shared a memorable Simmons tradition from February 21-23, Father Daughter Weekend! From a champagne reception to sports center activities, to a semi-formal dance at the Westin Hotel, the weekend proved fun for everyone! Some dads and daughters also went to the Mystery Cafe Dinner Theater at Three Cheers. Of course, the event wouldn't be complete without brunch at President Holmes's house on Sunday morning. Special thanks should also be given to all those who helped make this weekend a success.

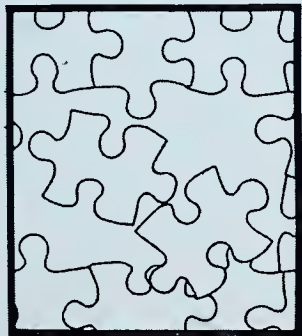

ORGANIZATION

Organizations at Simmons are popular and demanding. Many of us are a part of a small community of students working together to accomplish goals, to talk, to socialize, and to learn about ourselves and each other. Simmons offers a wide variety of organizations and liaisons - and if a particular group doesn't exist, we can create our own! Opportunities are endless and we are always encouraged to put our talents to use.

Organizations give us the chance to learn about responsibilities and leadership on our microcosmic level, so we may someday continue to use these skills on the national or international level.

SPORTS

Athletic teams at Simmons allow our individual talents to shine while we work for the benefit of the whole. From the water, to the fields, to the courts indoors, we learn the value of being part of a team.

Enthusiasm and loyalty are the two most widely-used words to describe any of us on teams at Simmons. We enjoy getting involved and the new sports center has increased our love for staying fit. Whether we win or lose, it's having fun and cooperating with each other that really matters!

BASKETBALL

AN UNFORGETTABLE SEASON

By Linda Zanghetti

The Basketball team had their best season ever. The team was full of experience. Head coach, Ali Kantor led Simmons for five years. Joining the family was Peter Wright as the assistant coach.

Leading the team were senior co-captains Elaine Munson and Linda Zanghetti. They dedicated their last and fourth year to Simmons. Junior Deb Bellavance gave another year of her solid defensive skill on the courts. Sophomore Heather Ross proved to be a dominating force. She ranked in the top ten among Division III players in rebounding. Senior Dawn Von Ahn was unable to contribute her talents at the beginning of the season due to an early injury, but returned second semester strong as ever. They all look forward to next season.

What were your expectations for this year?

At the beginning of the season, I felt that this was the team that would be the turning point for the basketball program. It's a great feeling to see it happen.

What were the funniest moments? When Dawn elbowed Elaine in the chest and her bra popped open.

Feelings you would like to add? As a senior, beating MIT was a major highlight. Elaine and I had lost three times to MIT. Winning that game that night was the best experience I had as a member as the team. The fans were the best. I'm just glad that the basketball program has grown so much in the last four years. With all the ups and downs, frustrations, and injuries came a lot of good feelings of accomplishment. It was a great season, a great way to finish.

Words that describe the team. Experienced, feisty, strong-willed.

The Little Crew That Could

By Darci Lynn Gomes and Dianna Shaw

This year, the Simmons varsity crew team went under many transitions. The departure of the previous year's varsity and novice coach left many loose strings. With the return of five varsity members who were Andrea Parent, Linda Pfarnerner, Jamie Lynn, Pam Certerra, and Susan Eshenfelder, the team was in need of uniting the old with the new.

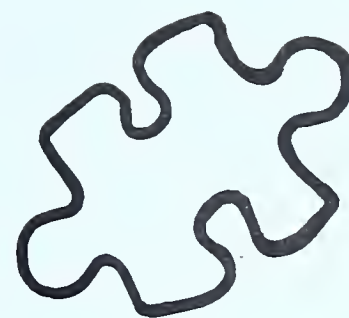

The new varsity coach, Pat Callahan, established a goal to keep the team rowing with enthusiasm. He faced the challenge of uniting two different styles of rowing, the previous year's varsity and the new varsity. The rising varsity brought in eleven members, including two coxswains and two seniors. The seniors were Darci Lynn Gomes and Dianna Shaw.

The team has a spring racing season that lasts for the three months from March to May. During the winter months the team worked hard through the cold weather in the school's indoor facilities. This included workouts in the tanks, on the ergometers and overall cardiovascular development combined with strength training. The team is looking forward to successful seasons.

What were your expectations for this year?

The whole team had high expectations from last year. Our goal is to keep the positive momentum throughout the year.

What were the funniest moments? Carolyn Chamberlain . . . in a water bottle on the starting line of Dad Vail. Four Pecker. Boats menstruating together.

What were the worst moments? The time when we were rowing on the Charles while it was hailing during spring break and we almost capsized.

Quotes? "Oh my god, I'm sitting in a puddle, and I'm wearing a pad!"

Words that describe the team. Team dynamics, family.

Any other feelings you would like to add?

My teammates are the best people in the world. It is the ultimate sport. It really made a difference; I wouldn't be here at Simmons, if it wasn't for crew.

THE FEW, THE PROUD . . .

By Kathleen Scruton

Despite the size of the team this year, those runners who did turn out were dedicated. Consisting of only five members, seniors Lauren Schlapak and Kathleen Scruton, sophomore Gretchen Eastler and freshmen Violet Markowski and Aimee Rubin, the team enjoyed a successful season as everyone's times improved. Thanks to coach Eleonora Mendonca and her exemplary driving skills, the team travelled from Rhode Island to western Massachusetts to Maine for competition safely and quickly.

The team captain, Schlapak, was honored by being named to the All New England team for her 17th place finish in the Division III New England Regional meet in Gardham, Maine.

Although the team is losing two seniors, the team is young and looks to have a bright future.

What were your expectations this year? To improve our personal times.

What were the funniest moments? Eleanora wearing street shoes to run.

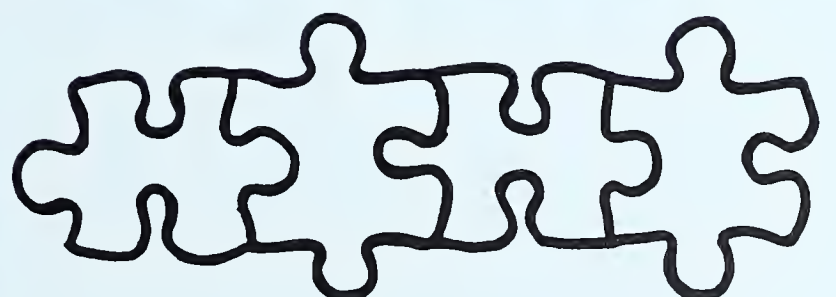

What were the worst moments? New England race. Injuries

Quotes? "Where are we going to eat?", "How many Heartbreak Hills?", "Amelia Bedila", "Don't forget your pillows, Gretchen!", "ROTC"

What are your hopes for next year? "The team is young, so I hope they will get more runners and start rebuilding."

Words that describe the team. Hardworking, dedicated, and fun.

Any other feeling you would like to add? "The four years being part of the cross country team is a great experience. I will miss everyone. And, on behalf of the team, I would like to thank Coach Eleanora Mendonca for a successful season."

FIELD HOCKEY

THE FUN IS WHAT COUNTS!

Though the team was small and many players were lost due to injuries, "those who remained were very dedicated to playing hockey because we love it!" said Meg Clifford. She hoped more people would realize that the time commitment really wasn't that bad because the friends made and the fun experienced made it all worthwhile. "We learned a lot from each other, our coach Milan is excellent, and maybe we didn't win every game, but we still had fun," said Clifford.

What were your expectations this year?
 I hoped for more consistent plays. I also hoped for a better freshman turnout.

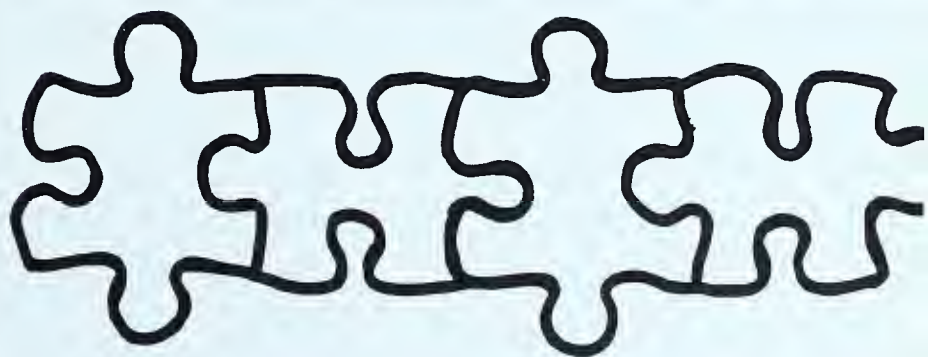

What were the funniest moments?
 Singing to Milan in the van. Milan's driving skills.

What were the worst moments? When MIT scored their ninth goal.

Quotes? "Milli" "Today we're going to win" "Do something with the ball!" "Speed up."

What are your hopes for next year? more players, a better freshman turnout.

Words that describe the team. Small and tough.

... OUT TO BEAT THE GUYS

By Brandy Herget

The Sailing team has definitely had their seasons; however, their spirit and ambition are still alive. With a smaller team this year, practices were difficult to conduct, but they admire coach Jack Carney's enthusiasm despite the team set backs. The 1991 sailers are juniors Brandy Herget, Jennifer Ziepniewski, Heidi von Ludewig, sophomore Kristi Winer, and freshmen Karen Markowicz and Melinda Pepin. From icicles on their noses and swims in the river, they take it one day at a time and have a great time.

They have built a respectful reputation for the Simmons name in intercollegiate sailing and they intend to keep and build this reputation even more. This is an amazing accomplishment for a division III school racing with division I competition. Simmons is also the only women's college in New England to compete in sailing. Since Simmons contributes the only woman skipper in many regattas, the team could say, "We're out to beat the guys!"

With their spring season cut entirely, they will not compete until fall of next year. However, they still intend to have meetings once a week to keep their unity intact.

What were your expectations for this year?

We all expected to do well. I also expected to get our spring season back.

What were the funniest moments? It was on a windy day. I was sailing a laser at MIT and suddenly I found myself between two BU men's crew boats beside me. I couldn't turn, I almost capsized.

What were the worst moments? It was at the Coast Guard Academy in CT. There were four of us sailing J-22's and none of us have any experience on how to fly a spinnaker. It filled through the shrouds on the side of the boat instead of the bow. Therefore we were pulled toward the bridge and we almost capsized.

What are your hopes for next year? I hope we can get more sailors to commit their time. It would give us a chance to place better. And we all hope to get our spring season back.

Words that describe the team. Ambitious

Any other feelings you would like to add?

Sailing is my favorite sport. It is relaxing and challenging. I have the best of both worlds. It is also the best sport when it comes to communication and working together. It is time consuming but it is worth it.

SMALL BUT HARDY

The 1991 Simmons College soccer team, led by new coach Darren Darwent, faced many challenges this season. After losing eight seniors, and with only three freshmen this year, they were the smallest team in their league. The team consists of only fourteen players, five players shy of a full team.

With their talent and positive attitude, they were able to come up with several wins. Leading the team were junior co-captain Rachel Gladstone and senior co-captain Beth Fioretti. Gladstone at center mid-field gave any opponent a challenge. Whether a score was made or not, Fioretti, junior Susan Mattia, sophomore Lorena Martinez, junior Bonnie Slayter, and junior Dana Spangler produced outstanding offensive plays. Sophomore Alexis Boryczk and Heather Parsons showed talent and effort on the forward line.

With Darwent coaching, the strategy this season depended mostly on the defensive line. Aggressive sweeper Karin McNerney at fullback, helping senior goalie Carla Diogo, stopped many balls from the net. Also at defense were freshman Amy Shea, sophomore Elizabeth Leahy, senior Jennifer Lipsky and Lisa Rowe. They proved a strong defensive force.

Their only fall backs were the numerous injuries that prevented the team from performing their best. But what kept them going was their coach. Darwent gave his experience, English humor, and positive attitude to the team. He made all the difference for the team.

What were your expectations for 1991? Because we lost seven seniors, I expected more freshman. I spent the first two weeks recruiting. It is very disappointing to find out that out of about 85 freshman that played varsity soccer, to only have three on the team.

What were the funniest moments? ..coach wearing red underwear with white umbros and with red socks! Stevie Wonder and Ray Charles. Joke time during stretching..What is the German word for ...? Coach singing "Good Vibrations" and the coach talking. World Cup soccer.

What were the worst moments? Losing to our old coach's team, Framingham State. Losing three or four players due to injuries.

Quotes? "Put the onions in the onion bag." "It's a funny ole game." "Composure!" "Fitness girls, FITNESS." "Roach" "Beth is Chippy."

What are your hopes for next year? More players and more fans. We need the support.

Words that describe the team. Hardworking, commodity and humorous.

TAKE A SPLASH OR TWO

By Catherine Boehm

This was the swimming and diving team's third year at Simmons College. Under the guidance of Head Coach Ann McDermott, Assistant Coach Frank Sampson, and diving coaches Mike Kennedy, Nicole Cosentino and Jeff Mule, the team rose to new challenges and accomplishments. During the course of their five month season, nine new pool and school records were set: three by co-captain Catherine Boehm, four by senior Kim Bergevin, and two by diver Jen Bergevin. Everyone achieved their personal goals at all levels, and are very proud of their accomplishments for the season.

What were your expectations for the year?

To bring the swimmers and divers closer. To get the everyone to accomplish personal goals thru team support and positive attitude.

What were the best moments? The best part of the season was our training trip in Florida. Because this was the first time the team has ever gone away over break, no one knew what to expect. As a result we grew together as a family.

What were the hardest moments? The hardest part of the season was watching so many of our athletes unable to give their fullest due to injuries. Knowing we have the potential to be successful but always facing some small setback, is tough on the team. But our optimism helped us through.

Words that describe the team. Spirited, supportive, hardworking, family, energetic

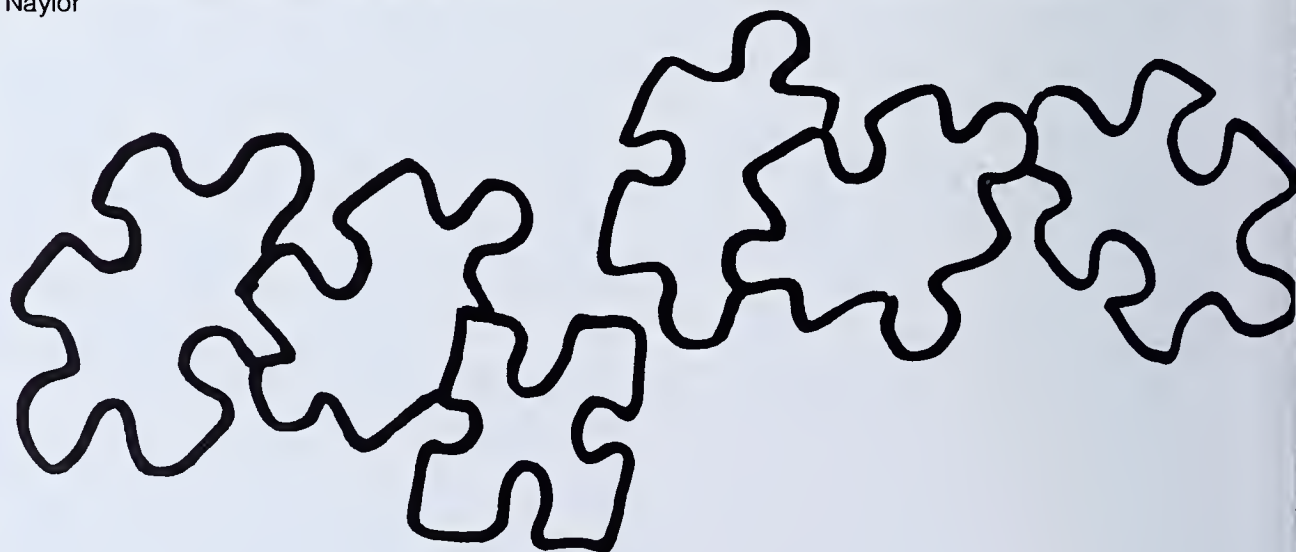

ON THE COURTS . . .

The 1991 Simmons Tennis team faced challenges this season. They performed well with a season record 6-8-3. Losing close matches was their main frustration. Leading the team were senior co-captains Nicole Sebes and Shannon Murphy. Senior Syhia Wriedt was also a strong force for the team. Also on the courts were junior Kristen Depasquale, junior Lisa Baillargeon, junior Meredith Burwell, senior Stacie MacDonald, freshman Georgette Sturam, and freshman Mindy Cohen. Head coach Karen Naylor and the returning players are looking forward to a more successful season next year.

What were your expectations this year?
 We basically had a good season but it was not as successful as I had anticipated.

What were the worst moments?
 Experience with Emmanuel and the nightmare journey to SMU.

Thoughts and feelings? There was never a dull moment. There was time for fun and work. I learned a lot from the people on the team. Tennis gave me a drive to work harder; gave me motivation, a goal. Some of my best memories came from tennis.

What are your hopes for next year's team? I think it would be difficult because our top three players are graduating. We need more experienced players.

Words that describe the team.
 Hardworking, motivated, determined, and supportive.

VOLLEYBALL

SPIKE IT!

The 1991 Simmons volleyball team was a very enthusiastic group despite its small size. The team was led by the efforts of its four seniors: co-captains Elaine Munson and Tracy Dollinger, as well as Jennifer Clary and Marcia Prucha. Juniors Doris Chin and Tina Giardina played a variety of positions, while sophomores Laura Eldridge and Pam Chamorro were outstanding as middle hitters and blockers.

The team's new recruits were freshman Siofra Rice and Sue Baughman who were always able to keep the team's spirit high with their sense of humor. The team ended their season with a record of 6 wins and 13 losses. Due to the intense schedule through September and October, each player improved her individual skills. Everyone will miss the varied personalities of their teammates that made this season one to remember.

Whether we reside on campus, in an apartment, or at home, we all share the same characteristic - the sense of community.

For those of us in dorms, we all remember those special moments for bonding - the all-nighters in the lounges, Friday afternoon tea, and of course, the fire alarms that always took place on cold nights! Don't forget socializing in Bartol and Quads side too!

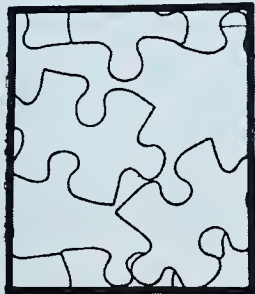

Commuters also described themselves as a community or family. The commuter lounge was said to turn into the atmosphere of a talk show because of the wide range of topics discussed! "We know everything about each other!" said Sandra Costantini, president of the Commuter Student Organization.

Special thanks is also given to the teams of workers that keep Bartol functioning and the campuses green and beautiful.

As individuals, we each make our worlds happen!

Commuter Students

Commuter students play an important role at Simmons because they emphasize the ideas of friendship and community. There is a special bond between commuters that exists whether they travel around or hang out on campus. The commuter lounge is where much of it happens...

"We all become good friends in here," said Christa Trigilio. Another commuter, Lynne Seeley, commented on the diversity, "I learned as much in the lounge as in all my classes...about people, cultures, guys, movies, and sex!" Both agreed the sense of togetherness and openness was "like a giant slumber party!"

President of the Commuter Student Organization Sandra Costantini said, "Everyone knows each other, where we're from, the daily stresses...even though we don't live with one another [like students in dorms] we're just as close, if not closer."

She acknowledged the extra effort commuters have to put in to be considered a part of the Simmons community, and said the Commuter Student Organization is an important means for integration. She said it is designed with the needs of commuters in mind. However, there are also events planned to encourage the unification of commuter and resident students. Commuter Awareness Day, the self-defense seminar, and trick-or-treating in the commuter lounge are just some of the opportunities for interaction. "We want to make people more aware of commuter issues," said Costantini.

ACADEMI

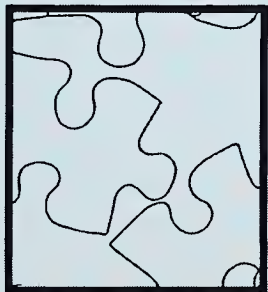

Our academic world provides us with the opportunity to get in touch with ourselves and find out who we are as individuals. Through the guidance of faculty and with the assistance of administration, staff, and offices, we can make the best use of our four years at Simmons.

Learning goes beyond reading and writing. We value the opportunities we spend with professors talking with them, sharing our ideas, and listening to their advice.

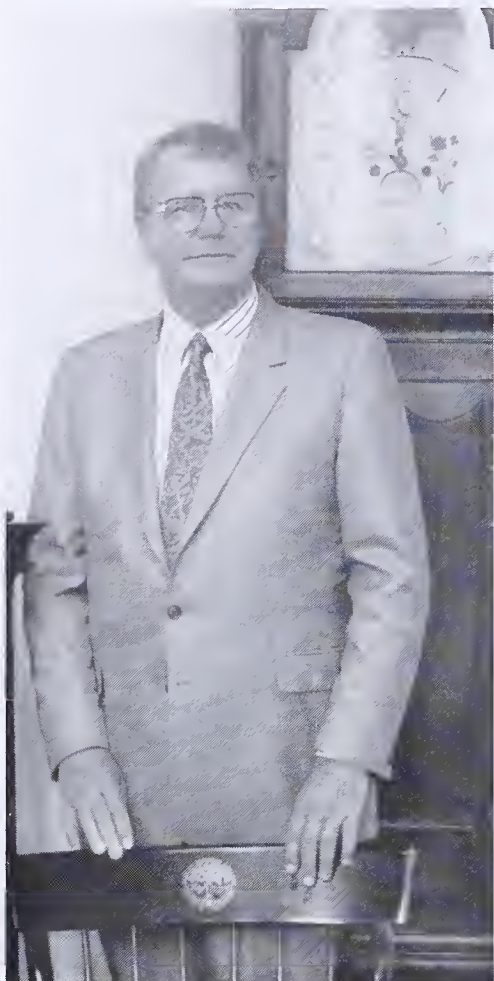

The academic training we receive prepares us for entering the world outside of Simmons. No matter how many years go by, we will never forget the professors that made an impact on our lives in a special way. Our interaction with them helps and prepares us as microcosms to face a world of macrocosms where we can apply what we've learned.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM J. HOLMES

SIMMONS COLLEGE

300 THE FENWAY
BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 02115-5898

To The Class of 1992:

What a world you face. The Berlin Wall has come down, Eastern Europe is opening to the world, democratic governments increase in number and strength in Africa, the Gulf War is over and won, Middle-Eastern antagonists of many centuries are sitting together to plan peace. Who could have seen even one of these events much less all of them?

But what does all of this have to do with your graduation from Simmons and your future? I hope that you have learned here, but more important, I hope that you have learned to learn. Because these events tell us that whatever is will change and whatever we have learned will be forever relearned.

After four years at Simmons you bring to this process, I believe, a strong sense of self-worth, persistence, the capacity for hard work and, most important of all, the belief that effort produces results that are worth the effort. Simmons graduates have proven to be special people who have done important things on this base; you join their ranks.

If, in the future, you need to call on us please feel free to do so. We are your college and the relationship we have established is life-long.

Yours,

William J. Holmes

SIMMONS COLLEGE

OFFICE OF THE DEAN

Dear Members of the Class of 1992,

If there ever was a time when Simmons College was a microcosm of the world it was during your enrollment with us. The turmoil and challenge of institutional change; the re-energizing of a Simmons spirit; and the concern, both individual and collective, about our future mirrored events far beyond the Fenway.

But as I write this letter it is each of you individually about whom I am thinking. What difference did it make to you that you spent your undergraduate years with us? How different are you as a result of that experience? How better will our society be because you have had a Simmons education? Because the answers to these questions will change with the passage of time, I urge you to take a moment now to write your response to those questions. Put your writings in this page of Microcosm to read again some years later. Then write again and file for future reference. Perhaps your class historian will collect your reflections for some distant class reunion. But whether or not that happens, you will have the real pleasure of connecting through time with Simmons and the real joy of celebrating your success.

It is with pride and optimism that I celebrate your graduation. Though we live in uncertain times, I have every confidence that each of you knows how to find a way to make a difference. As students, you were hard working, intelligent, sensitive, involved, demanding, and fun. The microcosm of Simmons is different because of you--so will be the future.

Sincerely,

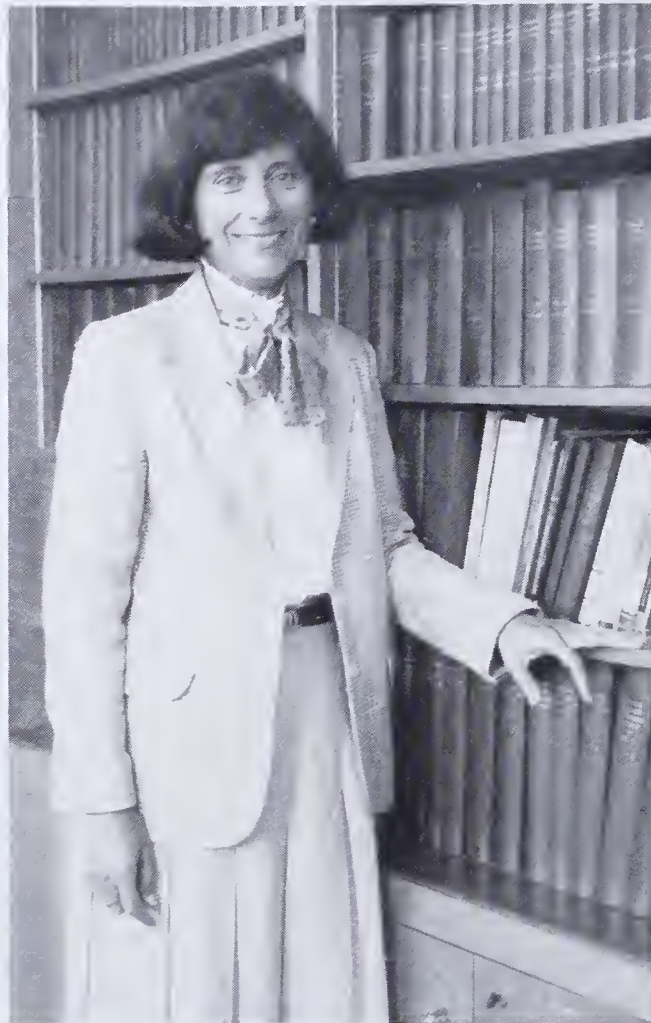

Charlotte Morocco

Can You Solve the Puzzle?

Times, styles and tastes have changed, but the faculty, staff, and administration of years past are still the same today -- dedicated to teaching us how to think, how to express ourselves and how to understand the world around us. The knowledge and skills we gain now and the unselfishness of our faculty and administrators will forever remain with us...

UNDERGRADU

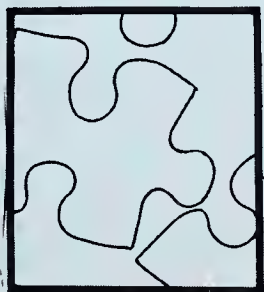

Simmons undergraduate women play a vital role as microcosms.

With fresh ideas, talents, and skills to offer to Simmons, its activities and organizations, we are able to develop our identities. Through our undergraduate years, we learn from the seniors and the other role models at the college.

We are important pieces of the puzzle of Simmons College that continue the tradition of excellence and the identity of a small women's college. Our preparation now will allow us to enter the world of macrocosms, ready and willing, when we become graduates.

CLASS OF '92, '93, '94, '95...

SENIORS

The final piece! Seniors are the key element in making a contribution to the world. Undergraduate years have provided preparation along with the training and skills learned through academic work and extracurricular activities. Everything is put to the test now. Whether entering graduate school or the work force, as microcosms and individual puzzle pieces, the class of 1992 will be making its impact on the world. The microcosms reflect the macrocosms.

The 1992 MICROCOSM has attempted to bring the notion of world affairs to the same level in the Simmons community. Starting with the view of the puzzle as a whole and gradually zooming in on smaller levels of macrocosms, the result is the individual puzzle piece. With all that is going on in the world, everything can begin and end with one individual...YOU!

Top Simmons Seniors Inducted into the Academy

By Heather Reese
Editorial Staff

Family, friends and faculty gathered together in the sports center last Wednesday to acknowledge and honor 23 students who were inducted into Academy.

In line formation each student walked across the small stage to shake the hand of President Holmes and receive their certificate from Charlotte Morocco, Dean of the College.

Academy was established in 1918 under President Henry LeFavour, according to Archive records, and recognized by faculty as the College's official honor society in 1943. Its original purpose was, "to recognize academic ability and scholarship in those courses of study which are of a liberal arts rather than of a technical character."

Current College literature describes Academy members as, "students whose superior achievement at Simmons places them in the upper ten percent of their graduating class."

Membership criteria for Academy has gone through many changes since the organization's establishment.

In 1940, members had a 3.2 cumulative grade point average (GPA), and transfer students a 3.3. It was that same year that sciences were included, for the first time, for entrance into Academy.

The current 3.75 GPA requirement for entrance into Academy was instituted in response to the creation of the Dean's list in 1959.

President Holmes and Dean Morocco, both speakers at the convocation, praised the Academy's new members.

"This event is even in some ways more important than commencement, because it honors the center of our academics," said President Holmes.

Holmes then introduced Harry S. Barnes, Warburg professor of International Relations who delivered the convocation address.

The subject of Barnes's speech, entitled, "Janus and Diplomats," emphasized the importance of diplomacy and looking at both sides of an issue. Janus was a Roman god of the past and present and had two heads, one looking each way.

"By all means, look at alternatives, consider your options. It means a great deal to be like Janus. Look at both sides of a coin, but always be sure you know what the coin is worth."

With the conclusion of Barnes's speech, members of the 1991 Dean's List were recognized by Dean Morocco.

"Academic excellence begins with imagination. The ability to form an image of something not present to the eye, and make it real or concrete to oneself. This is a celebration of teaching and learning," Morocco said.

Academy members were then introduced by the Advisor to Academy Carol Ochs, professor of philosophy.

"If you're the same as you were last year, you have died a little," said Ochs. She added, "Academy is meant to acknowledge your success in response to the academic system. It's meant to charge you to stay intellectually driven."

Driven is the word. Jennifer Lipsky, senior and Academy member says that she studies an average of 4-5 hours a night to maintain her GPA.

Lipsky has been on the Dean's list every semester, with the exception of fall semester of her freshman year.

As she sat through the ceremony Lipsky said that she thought about how hard she'd worked during the past three years.

"I was very honored to be there. I mean, I was excited when I got the letter, but actually being a part of the ceremony made me feel even more honored," she said.

Students are recommended for Academy by the Registrar, nominated by the Administrative Board, and admitted by Ochs.

Also honored at the ceremony were five students awarded for academic distinction.

The Alumnae Award for Academic Achievement was presented to Linda Wolf, by Beryl Hardacker Bunker, alumna of 1940. The first of the alumnae awards was presented in 1936.

Dianna,

Thank you for being the best of friends. You have taught me to live when I was afraid to. To be myself when I thought myself wasn't good enough. And to laugh, not to cry when there was nothing to laugh about.

Love you,

Mom, Dad, Ray, & Lea -

Through thick and thin, laughter, and tears, good times and bad times, you have always been here for me. Standing in front of me, showing me the way. Behind, supporting me. And beside, going with me. For never giving up on me, even when I gave up on myself. For helping me realize that nothing's impossible if I want it with all my heart. And for teaching me the beauty of the world and that all of my dreams can come true. I love you!

Thank you for your support & encouragement, your belief in me, your friendship, and, most importantly, your love.

*If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired of waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise:*

*If you can dream - and not make dreams your master;
If you can think-and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by Knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools:*

*If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: 'Hold on!'*

*If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings-nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it'
And-which is more-you'll be a Woman, my dear!*

Dear Heather,

Congratulations on your graduation day from your family both near and far. Four years ago you set off to face a new challenge, three thousand miles from home; a stranger to Simmons. However, over the last four years you have shaped your life, committing yourself to meaningful activities: Resident Advisor, The Sirens, and The Simmons News. Your voice has been heard each year in a different way. We are always with you as you continue this life long journey, facing life's challenges, we hear your voice. Every step we make is a graduation.

Additional Ad:

To Sarah Cassimally
Congratulations and Best Wishes For A Successful Future
From All of Us

Congratulations once again to all seniors! We hope you have enjoyed the 1992 MICROCOSM and we thank you for all your support and enthusiasm throughout the year.

I am also very grateful to all the members of MICROCOSM for your countless hours of dedication and devotion to the book. I really appreciate your continued effort and loyalty throughout the year. No matter how much you were involved with school and other activities you always pulled through! Thanks Anh Dao for all your time and help during school, your wonderful photos for both the yearbook and the supplement, and your greatly appreciated assistance in distributing the yearbooks! Good luck and thanks also to Pam Yee, the 1993 editor-in-chief, for producing the 1992 Supplement.

Special thanks should also go to Mr. Abe Orlick, president of DaVor Photography, and to all of his assistants who photographed the senior portraits, student candid, and many of the events held throughout the year.

Finally, I would like to thank Al in the Copy Center, Jocelyn and Carla in Student Activities, the Registrar's Office, Archives, the Mailroom Staff, and of course Tom Keeley (Josten's Publishing representative) for his patience, support, and encouragement throughout the year. We did it, Tom! NOW we can all relax!

Good luck to everyone! Love, Joanne
